

PRACTICAL INFORMATION

Route overview

13.2 miles (21.2km)

The start and end points of this stage are easily accessible by train, as is Broxbourne, a point at which the stage can easily be divided. As the railway shadows the route throughout, there are several other spots at which you can leave or re-join the path.

From Waltham Abbey it is 1.3 miles by road to Waltham Cross, then 0.4 miles to the open country of the River Lee Country Park. After just over another 1 mile you reach the River Lee Navigation, and follow its towpath for 3.3 miles to the outskirts of Broxbourne. The route is almost completely flat until you leave the river and walk via Broxbourne Old Mill for a short uphill segment to Broxbourne Park, and St Augustine's, reached in a further 0.2 miles. Broxbourne railway station, where the stage can be easily divided, is another 0.2 miles.

From Broxbourne railway station the route follows the New River Path, also the Hertfordshire Way, which are both signposted, to Rye House (2 miles). Here you switch to the River Lee Navigation for 3.1 miles, then bear west for a short climb to St John the Baptist in Great Amwell, reached in 0.3 miles. From here it is 2 miles, first on the New River, then the River Lee Navigation (re-joining the Hertfordshire Way), to the end of this stage at St Mary's, Ware.
